

Acknowledgements

A publication such as Significance 2.0 is by its nature the product of a collaborative process. Many people have been involved in its development at all stages, and their expertise, knowledge and wisdom has contributed to a very large degree to its final shape.

We are particularly grateful to Sue Natrass, former Chair of the Collections Council of Australia, for her skilful chairing of our project meetings. Also thanks to Ian Cook, who has acted as Sector Advocate throughout the development of this publication. Margaret Birtley, Collections Council Chief Executive Officer, has given us the benefit of her advice at all points of the project. Veronica Bullock has acted as project manager throughout and has steered the work to its conclusion, ably assisted by Charlotte Smith and Alexis Tindall. Valina Rainer provided copy editing, Gregg Mitchell and Jerry Pendleton delivered the inspiring print design and, together with John O'Brien and Collections Council staff, developed the Significance 2.0 website.

We also warmly acknowledge the many colleagues that we have consulted over case studies, illustrations and thorny questions of significance practice and terminology. Our thanks for taking the time to read drafts of the text and suggest alternative wordings, answer our questions, allow us to use images or suggest alternatives, and generally to help us avoid errors.

Particular thanks to colleagues who were able to review and comment on the draft of Significance 2.0 in a very short time frame. While we couldn't accommodate all the suggestions, every reader's report received the most careful consideration and debate. It was a process that improved the final text and made us wish we had 200 pages to do justice to all the ideas and commentary.

Thank you to the colleagues who contributed to the Collections Council's initial survey on Significance. This was an essential reference throughout the development of Significance 2.0. We were leafing through answers and responses almost up to publication.

The 2008 workshop provided a great many ideas and perspectives to consider through the research process. We thank those who gave excellent papers (see <<http://www.collectionscouncil.com.au/fifth+announcement+2+july+2008.aspx>>), and the participants who contributed many ideas.

For their assistance we thank:
